

Mr Mike Sathekge, Head of Nuclear Medicine at the University of Pretoria and Steve Biko Academic Hospital and President & CEO of the Nuclear Medicine Research Infrastructure (NuMeRI), Anchor Centre, South Africa

Mr Sathekge is a leading nuclear medicine professional and has led pioneering clinical trials in prostate cancer and targeted alpha therapy. He is currently the Head of Nuclear Medicine at the University of Pretoria and Steve Biko Academic Hospital and President & CEO of the Nuclear Medicine Research Infrastructure (NuMeRI).

He is also associate editor for the European Journal of Nuclear Medicine and Molecular Imaging and the Journal of Nuclear Medicine. He sits on The Lancet Oncology's international advisory board and serves as Editor-in-Chief of Seminars in Nuclear Medicine.

He is former President of the CMSA and WARMTH, past Chair of the SAMRC, and current Chair of AHRI. His honours include an honorary doctorate from North-West University and a Fellowship of the SNMMI.